

[illegible][illegible]

fell asleep on stage before one performance in New York and woke up and got a fright.

"At the time he was having one of those anxiety dreams of being on stage and not knowing why.

"I'm currently about to start Season three of Dexter. I'm hooked on it and I've not seen Six Feet Under which he was in.

"He is such a good actor and vocally he channels David Bowie.

"His mannerisms, his style and the way he sings without impersonating him.

"I have to remind myself he's not actually Dexter and not to ask him, 'Are you a psychopath?'" set in a Manhattan apartment and features reworked versions of some of Bowie's best-loved tracks. "It's a very high stage performance for Army in the Sound of Music, Nine To Five and Kinky Boots."

She also landed a part in the 2020 film Never Let Me Go.

And she admits treading the boards as Hall's troubled love interest eight times a week has been the most fun of her modeling career.

She admitted: "The creative team worked so closely with David and his co-writer [Ed] that it was an exhausting and harrowing journey my character goes on which is tiring but in a good way."

starving and just want to get home for my dinner.

"I don't get caught up in the social thing of going to the bar."

"I just want to go home and eat and go to bed because I'm knackered."

But on the plus side I don't need to leave the house until six at night."

Meanwhile, Amy is fed up continually telling people she's NOT going to do a roots singing nameake Annie deshouille both hailing from the Granite City.

She's even had stage door visits from people convinced she's related to the Eurythmics star.

Amy said: "We're not even related the first question I get asked. I was at a stage door and this woman assumed I was Annie Lennox's daughter.

"She said she used to know my nanny."

"I realised what she was on about because I had never had a nanny when I was little."

"She thought I was one of Annie Lennox's daughters so I corrected her in the end."

"But sometimes I wind people up and tell them she's my auntie."

She added: "It happened again."

last week. The woman on the radio show started talking about my mum and I wondered what she was on about.

"She asked me, 'What's it like to have such a talented parent?'"

"I thought, gosh, my mum is quite creative, but then I realised and I had to tell her that I wasn't actually Anne Lennox's daughter."

"She just assumed because I was from Aberdeen that I must be her daughter."

ously she hadn't bothered to do any research and should have checked. The show's co-host tried to make up for it at the end of the show by saying, "We're sorry, we're sorry."

"She is an in-house solicitor for the Scottish Environmental Protection Agency and I'm sure she would get along with Annie Lennox doing long as she doesn't sing."

"At this rate I might have to do Who Do You Think You Are to prove I'm not related to her, or disprove I am."

Producer Robert Fox described the Lazarus musical as "a very personal production 'dealing with one person's struggle at the end of his life'."

STAGE PRESENCE ... Amy with Michael C Hall in Lazarus, top, and with rest of the cast on stage, middle, and above, with a celebration of The Sound of Music's first year run in London a few years ago. Below, with Anna Escobedo in The Prince of Miss Joan Brodie at the Edinburgh Festival