

KIMBERLEY:

'Parenthood is harder than being a pop star!'

As a member of one of the UK's biggest girl bands, she toured the globe, performing in front of thousands of fans each night - but Girls Aloud star Kimberley Walsh says her role as a mum is an even tougher job.

Kimberley says, "Being a mum is way harder than being in Girls Aloud - my life is very different now! I guess the only similarity is the lack of sleep - there was way too much partying in Girls Aloud. I think I'm destined for a life of no sleep. But I love both chapters of my life and I feel rewarded in different ways."

The former pop star, 36 - who shares sons Bobby, three, and Cole, one, with husband Justin Scott - adds that she's making a concerted effort to go on date nights with Justin.

She says, "Justin and I should make more of an effort to go out. I like getting glammed up; I just find I'm always thinking about the early morning the next day and I miss my boys. I never switch off - it's hard to cut loose like I did before."

Kimberley - who's best friends with her former Girls Aloud bandmate Cheryl - also says she's keen to expand her brood.

She reveals, "I'd love to have another baby. I'm not ready to go again yet, but definitely in the future. I'd like a little girl, but when I see the boys together and their bond, it's so lovely. I definitely want another."

With husband Justin and sons Cole and Bobby

PHOTOS: WENN; FLYNET; NICK OBANIK/THE SUN/NEWS SYNDICATION; GOFF; GETTY IMAGES; IREX/SHUTTERSTOCK