REVIEWSCloser Than Ever at Landor Theatre, London 2010

"The production values are splendid as usual – Jason Denvir's simple construction of steps and platforms with long fringe curtains to add a glamour." What's On Stage

"Jason Denvir's set design, all multiple levels and beaded curtains, helps to accentuate the revue's 1980s origins and its sense of nostalgia for youth, while also looking very contemporary." Scott Matthewman

Wolfboy at Trafalgar Studios, London 2010

"Jason Denvir's succinct design concept works perfectly in this intimate venue" The Stage

Honk! at Royal & Derngate, Northampton 2009-2010

"A superbly designed show by Jason Denvir...puts the icing on the cake for this really promising seasonal offering." The Stage

"Jason Denvir's ingenious design allows for flying geese, dancing frogs and hatching eggs to grace the stage with equal believability and a genuine sense of fun throughout" What's On Stage

"It's deftly done, with a design by Jason Denvir that makes a virtue of the fact that the whole thing feels a mite cramped on the Royal stage." The Guardian

"The joyous energy of Panton's production is played on Jason Denvir's colourful set ... (providing) major contributions to ensuring the story and its human world in animal form are treated to a vigorous, colourful outing." Reviews gate

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? at Trafalgar Studios 2009

"Both find the lacerating edge of Albee's razored dialogue: they hurl perfectly honed hate across designers Jason Denvir's smoky, shabby living room set with terrifying precision" Time Out

"The emotional baggage of George and Martha's relationships reflected by the cluttered set, a convincing 1960's academic's living room /study complete with jazz records, modern art, Life magazines, and of course drinks cabinet." Londonist

"Jason Denvir's design sets a suitably tawdry tone, with a worn-out animal hide splayed across the floor as a sardonic reminder of the blood sport being played out." Mail On Sunday

"Jason Denvir's cluttered living room set is also a labour of love with the kind of gorgeous attention to detail you can savour at such close quarters" Daily Express

"The compact nature of the smaller Trafalgar Studio contributes to the play's pungent atmosphere as the events unfold so very close to your eyes. Jason Denvir's set, depicting a 1960's bourgeois living room complete with tasteless wallpaper and chintzy drinks cabinet, also helps the evening along." Music OMH

Stig at the Tabard Theatre 2008

"Clive King's engaging tale, about a boy who discovers a caveman living in the local chalk pit turned dump, is brought vividly to life in the Tabard's imaginative production. Considering the venue's size, Jason Denvir's picturebook perfect set represents a design feat. Using raised platforms, the safe domestic world sits cosily above an impressively realised chalk pit, decorated in detail with debris and framed by suspended jam jars with fairy lights." The Stage

Lifecoach at Trafalgar Studios 2008

"Jason Denvir's neat white set and writer Reed's choppy direction complete the package." Evening Standard

"cunningly designed with a chic minimalism by Jason Denvir" The Times

"Jason Denvir's set design...simple and slick." Remotegoat
