

CALENDAR

THIS WEEK

Thursday June 30

Breakfast at Tiffany's (pictured right), starring Pixie Lott, opens at the Theatre Royal Haymarket, London

The Hamilton Complex, part of London International Festival of Theatre, opens at the Unicorn Theatre, London

Kathryn O'Reilly's new play Screwed (pictured below) opens at Theatre503, London

Shakespeare in the Squares' production of Much Ado About Nothing opens at Leinster Square Gardens, London

Friday July 1

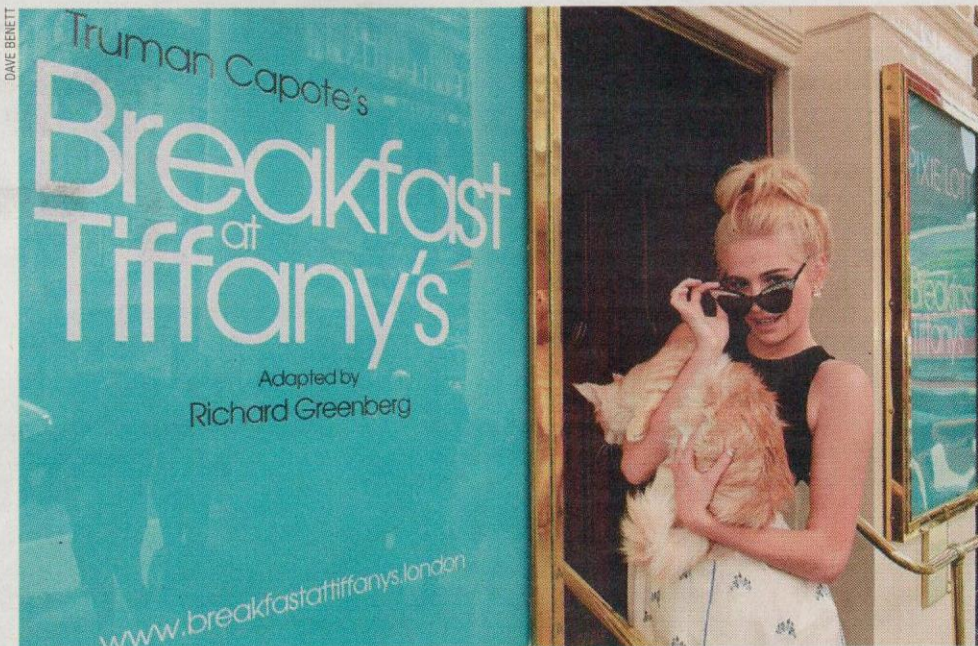

Hat Fair, the festival of open air and street theatre, opens in Winchester

The Greater Manchester Fringe (pictured below) opens

Saturday July 2

Il Trovatore opens at the Royal Opera House, London

Greenwich and Docklands

Sunday July 3

Le Nozze Di Figaro opens at Glyndebourne, Lewes

Monday July 4

EBacc debated in parliament

London Writers' Week begins

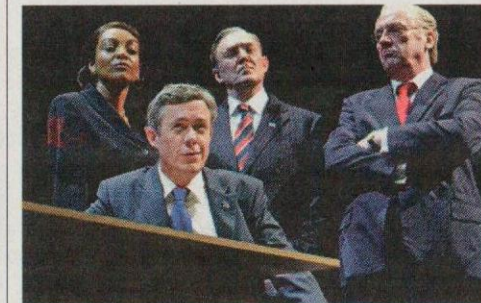

Tuesday July 5

The Mighty Walzer (pictured below) opens at the Royal Exchange, Manchester

Wednesday July 6

Queens of Syria opens at the Young Vic, London

PICKS OF THE WEEK

Stuff Happens

As the Chilcot Inquiry report into the Iraq war is finally published on July 6, the National revives David Hare's 2004 play about the decisions that led to the invasion on the same day for a one-off reading, directed by the playwright at the National's Lyttelton Theatre.

Mark Shenton

Queens of Syria

An all-female cast of Syrian refugees tell their own stories of war and exile in a reworking of Euripides' Trojan Women. Documentary and live performance are fused in a multimedia piece which is at the Young Vic, London, from July 5 to 9, ahead of a UK tour.

Natasha Tripney